....I wonder if you would turn your attention to the growing problem of cycling on the pavements & footpaths around town?

I appreciate that this is mostly a matter for the Highway Authority, but as we have just seen, they can be more than willing to take your views on board.

There are some Town Council controlled areas where cyclists are a problem & WTC could act on their own initiative - The Leys, the country park & the path through St Mary's churchyard are some examples that spring to mind. The church path is particularly hazardous for pedestrians, worshippers & on occasion, mourners.

I trust WTC will embrace this problem with the same verve & vigour they showed for the new speed restrictions.
